

Matthew Duvall, 40, is running for Annville Township Commissioner to fill a spot being vacated by James Scott, who is retiring at the end of this term. Duvall and his wife, Dr. Natalie Duvall, have lived in Annville for nearly a decade. They have three young children. A doctoral candidate at Drexel University, Duvall will earn his PhD in learning technologies in June. He also has nearly two decades of experience in the information technology industry as a software developer and data analyst. He sees this as a key area where he can contribute, taking over the IT coordination for the township when Scott leaves. He is excited for the opportunity to serve the local community and achieve the goal of making Annville a welcoming place for the diverse people from all backgrounds who make up the town, our county, our state, and our country.
